FORMULA 1 – GRAND PRIX

The Formula 1 Grand Prix started in 1950 , in Silverstone , England. The early years of Formula 1 were an extraordinary era, when drivers competed for sport and not for money. The first Formula 1 winner and champion was the Italian Nino Farina, driving an Alfa Romeo.

But it is the Argentinean Juan Manuel Fangio who symbolizes this first decade of Formula 1. He was, until 2002, the only driver to win five World Championships. In 1955, he had a terrible accident , but that didn't stop him from winning the championship in the same year.

Things have changed a lot since then. Many drivers appeared and disappeared, some tragically, like the Brazilian phenomenon Ayrton Senna, He died in 1994. One of the greatest stars was the German Michael Schumacher, who won seven championships. Now , he doesn't drive anymore, because he is too sick.
